Dogmatic Theotokion

First Mode

Andante \( \frac{3}{8} \) 84

The universal glory born of men, who hath given birth unto the Master,

the heavenly gate, let us praise

Mary the Virgin, the song of the bodiless hosts, and the adornment of the faithful. For she was shown to be a Heaven-en and a temple of the God-head; destroying the wall of enmity, she ushered in peace and opened the Kingdom. Possessing, therefore, this anchor of faith, we have as champion on the Lord. Who was born of her. Take courage, therefore, take courage, O ye people of God; for He shall fight thine enemies, since He is the Almighty One.
